PASTOR'S POST

The Incredulity of Thomas

2nd Sunday of Easter

April 23, 2017

Dear friends in Christ:

The stunning detail at left from a painting by Caravaggio (1571-1610) shows St. Thomas the Apostle placing his fingers in the spear wound that was inflicted upon Jesus after he died (John 19:34). The evangelist says that when Jesus was stabbed in the side to make sure he was in fact dead, blood and water gushed out.

The incident is reported in the Gospel for this Sunday: John 21:19-31. The risen Christ appears to His disciples behind the locked doors of the upper room where presumably they had shared the Last Supper days before, though John doesn't specify. John's account is minimalist: "Later on that day, the disciples had gathered together, but, fearful of the Jews, had locked all the doors in the house. Jesus entered, stood among them, and said, 'Peace to you.' Then he showed them his hands and side."

For reasons that are unclear Thomas was not with them and when Jesus first appeared to the disciples, who have now been commissioned to be apostles by Jesus with the words, "As the Father sent me so I send you." Later, they told Thomas they had seen the risen Lord, but he refused to believe unless he could touch the wounds for himself. Eight days later the risen Christ returns and appears to Thomas and invites him to indeed see and touch the wounds. Thomas responds, "My Lord and my God!"

This Gospel episode has given us the familiar phrase "doubting Thomas" for someone who is skeptical about something. Rather than "doubting Thomas" I prefer the word "incredulous" for Thomas. It comes from the same word from which we get "credit," which implies a relationship of trust. If a store allows you to buy something on credit it is because they trust that you will repay the debt. Thomas is incredulous. He doesn't trust the good news he has heard from the other apostles. It is almost as if he said, "I don't trust what you have told me. It's just too good to be true."

Is it? Is the Gospel of the risen Lord too good to be true in our own day, for us? There is good reason it might be. We live in a world in which little is credible. Recently the Whitehouse reported that a whole fleet of Navy vessels was on its way to the area around North Korea, including the aircraft carrier USS Carl Vinson. The next day the news reported the USS Carl Vinson was sailing in the opposite direction. What to believe, if anything? Fake news. Fake science. Fake people. In this environment skepticism seems to be the order of the day, and so we can identify with Thomas.

Maybe there is a bit of "doubting Thomas" in us all. The Good News is that the risen Lord met Thomas in the midst of his incredulity. This suggests to me that in times when my own spiritual life is burdened with questioning and doubting, I should not be dismayed. Rather I should reach out in prayer to say, "Lord I believe, help my unbelief."

In Christ,

Pastor Joe Hughes

PASTOR JOE ANNOUNCES NEW CALL TO SHERIDAN, OREGON – HIS LAST SUNDAY AT SHEPHERD OF THE VALLEY WILL BE MAY 7

April 17, 2017

Shepherd of the Valley Lutheran Church
2650 NW Highland Dr.
Corvallis, OR 97330

Dear Shepherd of the Valley members and friends:

Grace and peace to you from God the Father and our risen Lord Jesus Christ in the fellowship of the Holy Spirit! I pray that God has blessed you with a joyful celebration of the resurrection of our Lord. What joy it is to know that because He is risen we live forever in His presence.

I am writing you today to let you know that, after prayerful deliberation and consultation with brother pastors, our District President, and others, I have been led by the Holy Spirit to accept a new call to serve Trinity Lutheran Church in Sheridan, Oregon as its Intentional Interim Pastor. Last Wednesday, at its regular meeting of April 12, 2017, your Church Council was gracious in granting me a peaceful release from my duties at Shepherd of the Valley effective May 14, 2017. My last Sunday with you will be May 7, 2017.

I am most grateful that God has provided me the opportunity to serve you as your Intentional Interim Pastor these past twenty-two months. Even more, I am grateful for the kindness, prayers, and support I have received during this interim, and want you to know that I will miss you all.

As was shared by the Call Committee several months ago when they addressed the congregation, the training I have as a credentialed intentional interim pastor means that we, who serve in this capacity, are almost always in some stage of saying "hello," and then bidding farewell to those we have come to know and love as brothers and sisters on the journey of the Christian life together. May God be gracious to us and bless us as we bid farewell and Godspeed to one another over the next several weeks.

Yours in Christ,

Pastor Joe Hughes

The Rev. Dr. Joseph W. Hughes, STS

OSU Holocaust Memorial Week 2017

The last week in April will see the 31st annual observance of Holocaust Memorial Week at Oregon State University. As has been the case for many years, the upcoming observance will deal not only with the Holocaust but with the theme of comparative genocide. Also in keeping with our policy, human rights issues will receive a prominent place. All events are co-sponsored by the Holocaust Memorial Program and the School of History, Philosophy and Religion.

Monday, April 24, Construction and Engineering Hall, LaSells Stewart Center, 7:30 p.m.

Public Talk: Sarhang Hamasaeed, The Wars in Iraq and Syria – National, Regional, and Global Implications The ongoing wars in Syria and Iraq have resulted in hundreds of thousands of deaths. By far the largest number of victims have been civilians, and some groups, like the Yazidis, have been targeted for genocide. But the significance of the two wars extends far beyond the Middle East. They have helped to produce a flood of refugees that has in turn sparked political turmoil in Europe. They have given birth to ISIS, the most feared and active terrorist network on the current scene. They have had a considerable impact on international relations, as a number of major regional and world powers, including Iran, Russia, and the United States, have become involved.

In his talk on April 24, Sarhang Hamasaeed will examine the complexities of the wars in Iraq and Syria and discuss their implications for the region and the wider world. He is well acquainted with the intricacies of Middle East politics and at one time served as deputy director of the Council of Ministers of the Kurdistan Regional Government in Iraq. He is currently the director of Middle East Programs at the U.S. Institute of Peace. As such, he often speaks on issues that affect the Middle East, advising the State Department, giving testimony to Congress, and providing analysis to such outlets as NPR, PBS, Al-Jazeera America, and Voice of America.

Tuesday, April 25, Austin Auditorium, 7: 30 p.m.

Public Talk: Lucille Eichengreen, Reflections on the Holocaust

Born as Cecilia Landau in Hamburg, Germany, in 1925, Lucille Eichengreen would as a teenager endure the brunt of the Holocaust. During World War II, she survived the Lodz Ghetto, Auschwitz, and Bergen-Belsen. Her father and sister were murdered in the camps, and her mother died of starvation in Lodz. After liberation, Lucille assisted the British in identifying and bringing to justice more than forty individuals who had oppressed prisoners in the Nazi camps, but this service brought death threats and she moved to the U.S. She has spoken widely of what she saw and experienced during the war and has been much honored for this educational work, particularly in Germany. Her memoir, From Ashes to Life, tells her story in detail, and she will be doing a book-signing after she speaks. She has written two other books, as well.

Note: In order to assure that everyone who attends this event will find seating, we ask that those who wish to attend obtain tickets. These tickets are free and are available through our website or directly by clicking here.
(control/click to access)

Wednesday, April 26, Milam Auditorium, 7:30 p.m.

Panel: Hilary Bernstein and Amarah Khan, Religious Prejudice on the Contemporary Scene: How Great is the Threat?

We will sponsor a discussion on the current level of religious prejudice, primarily in the U.S. and Europe. The rise of the alt-right, incidents in which religious minorities are harassed or targeted by violence, and the prospects of a "Muslim Ban" in the U.S. have aroused concern and fear. This program is intended to provide insight and perspective. Hilary Bernstein, regional director of the Anti-Defamation League, will discuss recent indicators regarding the level and intensity of Antisemitism, while Amarah Khan, Associate Director of Global Diversity Initiatives at OSU, will speak to the issue of Islamophobia, both locally and more generally. The event will also address the targeting of other religious groups in the contemporary world.

Note: Weather permitting, this event will be followed by a candlelight vigil (9:15-10:00 p.m.) on the MU Quad. The vigil is intended to affirm religious and cultural understanding in our diverse community.

Thursday, April 27, C&E, 7:30 p.m.

Public Talk: Anne Kelly Knowles, The Transformative Power of the Holocaust

A professor of history at the University of Maine and formerly professor of geography at Middlebury College, Anne Kelly Knowles is among the foremost proponents of GIS (geographic information systems), a methodology that bridges geography and history. Among her many books is the highly acclaimed Geographies of the Holocaust, a volume that she co-authored and co-edited. In her talk at OSU, Knowles will draw on survivor testimony and her extensive research on concentration camps and ghettos in order to explore "the power of confinement, relocation, forced labor, and the constant threat of violence to change the everyday worlds of Jews throughout Eastern Europe."

This event will be co-sponsored by the OSU College of Earth, Ocean, and Atmospheric Sciences and the Geography Program.

All of the events noted here are free and open to the public. Except for the talk by Lucille Eichengreen, no tickets are required. Updates and further information on the events are available at the website of the Holocaust Memorial Program (<http://holocaust.oregonstate.edu>).

OUR BIBLE READING CHALLENGE

SYLLABUS AND READING ASSIGNMENTS in MATTHEW, THE GOSPEL OF IDENTITY February–May 2017

The Biblical Equipping Ministry Team is challenging everyone in at Shepherd of the Valley to read and study the Gospel of Matthew using Michael Card's book Matthew, the Gospel of Identity. Card argues that Matthew's first hearers (intended audience) were Jewish people who accepted Jesus as the messiah (Christ) and were probably living in or from Galilee in the time after Jesus' death and resurrection. Galilee was a land in turmoil. The Romans had destroyed the Jerusalem temple and many Jewish freedom fighters had died in the wars with the Roman occupation forces.

Not all Jews accepted that Jesus was the promised Messiah, as is obvious from the story of Jesus' passion and death. Those who did were a relatively small group that at first tried to blend in with those who did not. By the time Matthew's Gospel was in written form these Jewish Christians were being "stripped of their Jewish identity," expelled from synagogues and shunned by main line Judaism, says Michael Card.

The first listeners of the Gospel of Matthew may have been living that experience, propelling them to ask the question, "Who am I, really?" In Matthew Jesus redefines the identity of his followers in light of His own identity and Immanuel, Go with us." In Him they are fishers of people, inviting the poor, sinful and unclean to enter the new kingdom on Jesus' authority, by "following Jesus," and ultimately sent into the world to "make disciples of all nations." (Card, pp 20-21).

What can we discover about what it means to be called to follow Jesus as a "priesthood of believers" from the Gospel of Matthew? How does God call us to embrace a new identity as followers of Jesus in the world today? Join the lively conversation Sundays, 10:30-11:30 AM.
